Scheafer Wins

Washington, March 4.—Jake Scheafer, former title-holder, defeated Felix Grange of France, in last night's match in the world's 182 balk line billiard championship tournament here by the score of 400 to 287.

Scheafer played a game marked with speed and daring shots, while Grange displayed stellar work on a number of difficult counters.

The French player tied the contest in the fourth inning and then took a slight lead which he held until the eighth frame. Scheafer negotiated a 72 in that inning and as Grange's shooting took a bad slump for the remainder of the game, piled up his lead until the sixteenth inning when he reached the 400 mark.

Scheafer took the high run honors with 169 in the first inning.

STANLAND HAS NEW PLAN FOR TRAFFIC ORDER

Police Commission Hears Scheme For Traffic Control in Victoria

Commissioner Walter E. Stanland yesterday brought before the meeting of the Victoria Police Commission a new plan for protection of pedestrians and regulating of motor traffic in this city.

Briefly, his suggestions, which he will put into more presentable form before the next meeting of the body, are to have an officer appointed to be in charge of all motorcycle men and three special traffic constables for duty in the downtown area.

Commissioner Stanland's plan met with no opposition in the board. Mayor Pendergast, chairman of the body, spoke in favorable terms of such a plan. Commissioner A. M. Allen did not criticize.

For some time past Commissioner Stanland has been considering plans whereby the city's traffic may be properly regulated. His latest plan, which will put the entire traffic department under one head, has the approval of experts in bigger cities where the same system is in force. Modern police work requires such a branch of service, Commissioner Stanland declared.

SPECIAL DUTIES
The motorcycle men, while paying special attention to traffic as they have done in the past, will be on patrol duty as well during the night and in the busy hours during the day one or more of them will be riding the city streets. The three foot patrolmen will be utilized for guarding bank messengers and for the regulation of traffic on point duty.

Commissioner Stanland was asked yesterday to draw up his suggestions in proper form and lay them before the next meeting of the commission. Until this is done and the traffic department problem finally settled, the matter of the police chief's recommendations in regard to salary increases and the addition of members to the personnel of the force, will be left unconsidered. None of these things were brought up at the meeting yesterday. The estimates for the year are thus held up.

WANT NEW OFFER
Applications for a new patrolman will be received immediately by the Board of Police Commissioners, it was announced last night.

For some time past Chief of Police John Fry has been agitating for additional men for the city police force, for he declares his present staff to be inadequate to cope with the work which daily occupies the police, and which, with the steadily increasing motor traffic, the growth of the city and gradual expanding of the residential areas grows heavier each year. The question of more men will come up for consideration with the rest of the chief's recommendations at some future meeting when traffic problems have been considered.

Position of U.S. Is Made Plain

Washington, March 4.—The assembly of United States military forces in China is not a result of any international arrangement, Acting Secretary of State Grew informed Chairman Porter of the House foreign affairs committee yesterday.

Mr. Grew, replying to a resolution by Representative Black, Democrat, New York, requesting information on the Chinese situation, said that United States forces would be governed in their activities by orders from the United States alone.

The United States Government had not entered into any arrangement with any country, he continued, for the employment of the military or naval forces in China, other than the agreement contained in the final protocol of China and the powers in the settlement of the Boxer uprising.

He added that the State Department had not been informed of the presence of the forces in China was "highly deleterious" to United States trade with China.

Black's resolution asked if there was any undesirable effect on American-Chinese trade as a result of the presence of military forces.

YOUNG CLUBMEN TALK TO MEETING

Kinsmen Club's Speakers All From Within Own Organization

The Kinsmen's Club of this city at its regular bi-weekly dinner at the Empress Hotel, heard addresses from several of its own membership last night. Norman McMillan, speaking on "How to Get the Most Out of the Club," touched upon the cooperation and good-fellowship which was so desirable in any organization and indicated that these two qualities were present among Kinsmen in his proportion. Attendance also was of primary importance, he said, for unless a member came to club meetings and functions he lost touch with the spirit of the organization and with his personal contacts with his fellows.

Edwin Sanders, speaking on "Confederation," dealt largely with his local matter.

Harry Gilliland spoke on "The Dominion Jubilee Celebration," asserting that this anniversary celebration would do much to create a national spirit in Canada so much needed.

Stanley Martin spoke on "White Gold," which jewelers had manufactured during the war when the United States Government had taken all platinum in hand and the jewelers were seeking a substitute. The white gold, made by mixing pure gold with nickel, just as the ordinary gold was mixed with some other alloy in larger or smaller proportion in the manufacture of jewelry.

James Mason spoke on the value of a bank savings account for all persons.

sons. Systematic saving was a boon to every man, he said.

eleventh end, when they were 11-all, and from this point St. John's proved the strongest players. The players were:

$11,000,000 DEMANDED

New York, March 4.—Officials of the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Company declared to-day that Frank J. Hogan, Washington counsel for the company, had been instructed to confer with government attorney regarding steps to be taken to secure a congressional appropriation of nearly $11,000,000 to pay for the Elk Hills naval oil reserve development. The company's lease on this property was cancelled by the Supreme Court on grounds of fraud.

MINING EQUIPMENT IS SUBJECT OF SUIT

Appeal Court to Rule on Claim Which Arose on Spanish Creek, British Columbia

Vancouver, March 4.—Decision has been reserved by the Court of Appeal here on an appeal by six Cariboo miners and N. H. McDiarmid, a lawyer of Lively, B.C., from a judgment of Mr. Justice Morrison, who awarded the Enis Gold Mining Company Limited, of Kelowna, possession of mining equipment on Spanish Creek.

The appellants miners are Alex G. Henderson of Vancouver, Charles Burns and Charles McDonald of Lively, Frank T. Harris of Williams Lake, and William Lyne and William J. Robins of Soda Creek.

The equipment is valued by the company at $5,000, which sum is claimed by the company in lieu of return as damages. The district registrar at Kelowna was directed by the trial judge to assume damages, but this has been postponed pending outcome of appeal.

Harris, on behalf of Standard Mining Company, of which he is foreman, also appealed from dismissal of his counter claim to recover from the Ennis Gold Mining Company Limited, $2,832 and the mining equipment.

Judgment was also reserved on this appeal.

It was contended by appellants that the Kelowna company, through abandonment of an option to purchase placer gold claims from them, had forfeited its right to the mining equipment.

LANGUAGE QUESTION AND CIVIL SERVICE OF CANADA DEBATED

Ottawa, March 4. That persons having a knowledge of both English and French should be given a preference in appointments to civil service positions, that civil servants having a knowledge of both languages should be given preference in promotions, and be better remunerated than those public employees in similar position who know only one language, were provisions of a resolution moved in the House of Commons by P. A. Seguin, Liberal Assumption-Montreal, Quebec.

The motion was not put and the House adjourned with the motion still before it.

Discussion of the motion is unlikely to be reached again during this session.

Mr. Seguin contended that since the French people of Canada had been given the right to retain their language and it had been made one of the official languages of the country, they should have the right in doing business with the Government to do it in their own language.

J. J. Denis, Liberal, Joliette, Quebec, voiced his support of the resolution. He believed the principle advocated was solid from every viewpoint.

C. B. Howard, Liberal, Sherbrooke, Quebec, believed it was in the interest of Canada to adopt the resolution.

PEACE DESIRED

David Spence, Conservative, Parkdale, Toronto, suggested the mover of the resolution would be well advised to withdraw it, as it was one likely to cause friction.

"We want peace in this House and peace in Canada," he said.

J. S. Woodsworth, Labor, Winnipeg North Centre, also regretted the introduction of the question, because it was apt to result more or less in an appeal to prejudice. Civil servants, where possible, he added, should know the language of the people they were dealing with.

H. C. Hocken, Conservative, Toronto West Centre, said the motion had been introduced for election purposes. The Prime Minister was astute to let it pass, and so was the Minister of Railways. It was discriminating against the English-speaking civil servants.

"Man for man, the English-speaking civil servants are as efficient, if not more so, than the French-speaking ones," he asserted, describing the resolution as "a form of coercion."

Henri Bourassa, Independent, Lac-Belle, Quebec, in supporting the resolution, declared he viewed the question not from any narrow minded racial standpoint, but from the broad national angle. In Montreal, Mr. Bourassa said, he had himself visited customers and called at ten public servants who could talk to him in the French language. Officials had replied to him, not in the King's English, but in American slang.

SEEK AGREEMENT ON NEW TAX ON SALE OF ASSETS

by the House during the morning session.

Mr. Jones protested emphatically against a bill so important being introduced in the dying hours of the session. He added that the measure indicated clearly the Government's intention to collect more revenue this year instead of less, as stated in the budget speech of Hon. J. D. MacLean, Minister of Finance. He objected to the proposal to tax the net profits on the sale of natural resources on the ground that it would discourage the investment of capital here.

A. McCreery, Provincial, Vancouver, also objected to the passage of the Taxation Act amendments with such short notice and debate was adjourned.

Later in the day R. H. Pooley, Opposition Leader, issued a statement in which he declared he could see no prospect of the House finishing its session on Saturday night as planned. Such consideration must be given taxation matters, he said, that adjournment so soon seemed impossible.

HOUSE AGREES TO BEHAVE BETTER AT FUTURE SESSIONS

committee revise them under Attorney-General Macdonald to whom he paid a high compliment for his work as speaker. He instanced a number of rules which, he said, should be revised to make the proceedings of the House more satisfactory to everyone.

"As to the decorum of the House it is a travesty upon the proper and dignified procedure of a deliberative body, a veritable burlesque," he asserted. "One can only liken it to a bear garden. We have no set method of conduct. The proper courtesies are not, in my opinion, accorded to the chair and in this we are all equally offenders. Take for instance the habit we all have of addressing the honorable gentlemen across the House as 'you' instead of addressing the chair. Could anything be more crude and ill-mannered? One cannot imagine a more grotesque proceeding, or a grosser discourtesy to the chair."

SHOULD BE PATTERN

"This House should be a model and pattern to every assembly, every meeting of the public that meets for deliberative purposes. I wonder if any one who looked down from the galleries would think of us as such? I don't mean we should sit like a burlesque party. We must have our wit and repartee and fun. It would be a dull and unbearable House if we didn't have a little laughter and ridicule occasionally. There is, however, a great fallacy in evidence nowadays that in order to be democratic one must act like a 'roughneck.' This is a ridiculous notion. A man who respects himself and if we want to be respected by the public of British Columbia we have got to mend our ways and remodel our procedure."

ACTION PROMISED

H. G. Perry, Liberal, Port George, Deputy Speaker of the House, agreed that a revision of the rules was necessary and that a more elaborate code than at present existed should be drafted to prevent two frequent references to May, the authority of the British House of Commons.

The Attorney-General said the Government would get a copy of the report of the committee which is revising the rules of the Canadian House of Commons and use anything considered of value in it to aid in remodeling the Legislature's methods of procedure. When the House met again, he said, the Government would make definite recommendations on the matter to a select committee which could then whip new rules into final shape.

Press representatives include E. A. Doyle, chief of staff of The Argus, Melbourne, and W. Adams, representing the United Press.

including meat packing, food factories, motor industry, engineering and many other phases of metal manufacture, power and electricity, silk, woolen and cotton textiles, paper printing, leather goods, paint, rubber, and other manufactures and shipbuilding. It is also proposed to visit laboratories, educational institutions, workmen's homes and government departments, from which it is hoped to obtain valuable data and statistical information, said Mr. Murphy to-day.

NEW CAMPAIGN TO ROUT RUM SHIPS

"Previous to the seizure of the Federalship there had been no announcement of the passage of this law or of the arrangement between the two governments under which the United States might act."

The belief was expressed that other vessels carrying rum, registration and in service of both coasts would now be captured by United States coastguard cutters and patrol ships.

FIGHT IN COURTS

San Francisco, March 4.—The battle between the Government and Canadian liquor exporters over the tramp steamer Federalship and her $1,000,000 cargo of Scotch whisky, was transferred from the high seas to the courts here to-day as the ship, recently seized under coastguard fire, 300 miles west of the California coast, swung at anchor under guard.

The court battle in the offing promises to be an unusual one as Captain S. S. Stone, skipper of the rum ship, the only person to be arrested inside the United States, is committed to an act of war by shelling his vessel. The guard vessels about five times, two of their six-pound shells taking effect on the main deck of the Federalship.

WAR DECLARATION

Captain Stone, who was held for arraignment to-day, said he would ask the Panama Government, under which the Federalship was registered, to declare war against the United States unless amends were made for the use of coastguard guns. Meantime, United States District Attorney George H. Hatfield announced the procedure thus far had been legal, and that the Government would claim the Federalship as a known rum-runner. Documentary evidence had been found aboard the ship to support the Government's position, he said.

Owners of the ship were on their way here from Vancouver, B.C., to-day, to fight the case.

Federal authorities have begun an investigation to determine if an attempt was made to scuttle the Federalship. She had developed a serious leak when she arrived here, and coastguardmen denied the damage had resulted from the shells fired at the steamer, which is forty-two years old.

A tip that William Bowen, sought by Federal officials in connection with a gun battle at Moss Landing, California, in which there was a death, was aboard the Federalship, proved unfounded when the vessel was towed to her anchorage here.

Suggestion Made

Canada Now Buy

Labrador Area

Ottawa, March 4.—The question of Canada buying from Newfoundland the territory in Labrador which has been in dispute between the two countries and which has been awarded to Newfoundland by a recent decision of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council here was raised in the House of Commons yesterday in a question by C. H. Cahan, Conservative, St. Lawrence-St. George, Montreal.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe, acting Government leader, replied that the text of the judgment had not yet been received here and it would be as well to wait until that was in the hands of the Government before taking the suggestion of Mr. Cahan into consideration.

The Dumbells are back in Victoria. They arrived this morning, bringing with them a brand-new production called "That's That," which had its premiere in Vancouver last Monday, where it scored a decided success. Those patrons who are in the habit of arriving at the theatre just a few seconds after the curtain has gone up on the first act, are going to miss something really new in the way of revue openings. minutes ahead of time to fully appreciate "That's That," the prologue to this new revue is shrouded in deepest mystery. The intensity of action demands the deepest attention, and no one will be admitted to seats after the overture until the prologue is completed. It runs about seven minutes. The curtain rises on a darkened stage. Hooded characters dart to and fro. The arch criminal has gathered his conspirators together to swear them to the oath of allegiance and to perfect the final details of a crime that is about to be perpetrated upon a group of innocent people. So secret is the sinister plot that those who see the show are requested to refrain from discussing the action with any who have not witnessed it for themselves. After this unusual beginning, the action of the revue jumps immediately into the lighter vein so characteristic of the Dumbells' cleverly constructed musical entertainments. Captain Plunkett announces no less than twenty-seven brand-new items in his programme of "That's That," and further states that they are not only new, in the sense that they have

DOLORES COSTELLO
ALURING STAR IN PLAYHOUSE PICTURE

Brooklyn, the City of Churches, before its amalgamation with New York, tends more and more to recognition as the Childhood Home of Movie Stars. It was Brooklyn that gave to the screen Norma and Constance Talmadge, Viola Dana, Shirley Mason, Edna Flanagan, Alice Joyce and Anita Stewart. And now it seems to have released the most arresting talent of all in Dolores Costello, the star of "The Third Degree," the Warner Bros. production, which is now showing at the Playhouse Theatre.

PROMINENT STARS IN LEADING ROLES FOR DOMINION FEATURE

Marcelle Corday, noted French dramatic actress, who has recently appeared in a number of important screen productions, was engaged for an important role in "The Scarlet Letter." Lillian Gish's elaborate starring vehicle for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, now being shown at the Dominion Theatre.

The role is that of "Mistress Hibbins," the nemesis of the ill-fated heroine of the Nathaniel Hawthorne classic, and is one of the most important portrayals of the picture. Miss Gish plays "Hester Prynne," and Lars Hanson, famous Swedish actor, makes his first American appearance as her leading man, playing "Reverend Dimmesdale."

Miss Corday, a Belgian by birth, is a niece of Ysaye, the famous Belgian violinist, and is noted in France as a dramatic actress. On coming to America she appeared in such productions as "The Viennese Medley," "The Phantom of the Opera" and others.

"The Scarlet Letter" was adapted from the great American novel by Frances Marion, who also did the continuity for Director Seastrom. Other parts in the cast are taken by Karl Dane, Mary Hawes, William H. Tooker, Fred Herzog and Jules Cowles. In filming the famous story the utmost care was taken to reproduce authentically the background of the little Puritan village in which the powerful drama is laid.

MAN FIGHTS WITH BRUTAL RIVAL IN BIG VARIETY FILM

When F. B. O. filmed "The Isle of Retribution," an adaptation from Edison Marshall's novel, he realized what an exceptionally strong and gripping theme he had. For in the motion picture version which James Hogan directed, now playing at the Variety Theatre, the producers have assembled a corking cast to support and interpret vital, powerful, penetrating material. Lillian Rich takes what is billed as the stellar role, and Victor McLaglen makes a superlative heavy as "Doomsdorf," the half-mad brute who has escaped from slavery in the Siberian salt mines and who rules with infernal cruelty the little island off the Alaskan coast where the victims of the shipwreck are cast. Robert Eraser, as the rich man's son who becomes regenerated under the grim White Gods of the north-land and the lash of "Doomsdorf's" mighty fists, gives a splendid portrayal, while Mildred Harris and Kathleen Kirkham are perfect in the parts of the snobbish society daughter and her mother. David Torrence and Inez Gomez are also excellent.

GIBSON'S LATEST
FULL OF THRILLS
WITH NEW SETTING

Full of action—fast and furious—comedy that is funny; these are features of the newest picture of that popular star, Hoot Gibson, in "The Buckaroo Kid," the Universal-Jewel production which is the present feature attraction at the Columbia Theatre.

"The Buckaroo Kid" contains these enjoyable ingredients in about equal proportions, and each contributes to the effectiveness of the other.

Taken from a short story by Peter B. Kyne, the popular author of the "Cappy Ricks" stories, "The Buckaroo Kid" presents something new in "Westerns." Gibson is found in a new locale for a large part of the story then returns to his usual cinema habitat, the Western ranch.

Ethel Shannon, Burr McIntosh, James Gordon, Charles Colby, Clark Comstock, Harry Todd, Newton House and others play the more prominent roles in support of the star.

The picture was made under the skillful direction of Lynn Reynolds, who also wrote the screen adaptation of the story.

HARPIST TRIO IS AGAIN AT CAPITOL
THEATRE TO PERFORM

The management of the Capitol Theatre announces that they held the Harpist Trio Supreme over for one more week in answer to the demand and numerous requests received in the past week. The Trio present an entirely new programme of melodies, both classical and popular. Narcisses a danseuse of wonderful grace and poise, will delight Victorians with a gorgeous dance divertissement, she is billed as "The Little French Flower."

Teddy Sullivan a character comedian, will offer a pleasing collection of musical memoirs on an English concertina.

The Capitol Theatre concert orchestra will play a de luxe programme for the feature attractions.

Director Gregory La Cava's idea of a hard job is to get sixteen extras into an hilarious frame of mind at 9.30 o'clock on a Monday morning after they have climbed over snow drifts for four blocks in a forty-mile-an-hour gale on their way to the Paramount Studio.

Snow had piled up in Astoria, Long Island, and the surrounding country when Richard Dix's Paramount picture, "Paradise for Two," now at the Capitol, had reached the point where the script called for a snappy Charleston party in his Park Avenue apartment. Sixteen extras, four musicians and the usual technical assistants were on call.

The musicians arrived at nine, shook the snow out of their collars, held their fingers over the radiators, and tried to get pep into their music. The extras peeled off their wraps about a half hour later, and Mr. La Cava shouted: "Let's go. Camera! Lots of pep!"

Cracked ice and ginger ale were served by the butler while the cameras were grinding, but steaming coffee was popular between scenes.

Full houses are greeting the Desmond Players at the Coliseum this week. These popular players present a farce comedy, "Oh! Archibald," which is one continuous scream from rise to fall of curtain. The company this week excels in musical numbers. Miss Blanche Ladeau's singing was especially well received, while Miss Nellie Lear's dancing gained new admirers. The feature presentation, "Soul Mates," by Elinor Glynn, is really a wonderful picture with a strong heart interest.

TELEPHONE BILL IN ALBERTA OPPOSED

Edmonton, March 4.—The Alberta Government's proposal to pay out of the general funds of the province an annual subvention of $177,000 for ten years to aid in carrying maintenance and operation charges on "colonization telephone lines" serving remote settlements, which have been unprofitable from a revenue standpoint, met with considerable criticism in the Legislature yesterday when the bill came up for second reading.

Opposition speakers alleged the payments were really a deep-laid plan to hide away deficits in the Telephone Department. The bill received second reading.

Hon. R. G. Reid, Minister of Municipal Affairs, stated the Government was investigating the whole question of the licensing of automobile drivers and that there was a OPERATIC STAR—If the voice of any woman ever won in Rome such acclaim as the Italian music critics recently accorded Miss Ruth Thompson, there is no available record of it. Beauty, a golden soprano and marked histrionic capabilities combined to lend impressiveness to Miss Thompson's debut as "Mimi" in La Boheme. She is a pupil of Romualdo Sapio, the composer.

Gilbert and Sullivan Opera at Royal For Three Days Commencing March 10

Lovers of Gilbert and Sullivan opera here will be delighted to know that arrangements have been completed for the world-renowned Doyly Carte Opera Company now touring Canada after a record-breaking engagement at the Prince's Theatre, London, to appear at the Royal Theatre for three days commencing Thursday, March 10, when the "Gondoliers" will be presented for the three evenings and Saturday afternoon performances.

Since the opening of the tour in Montreal on January 4, the company has played to capacity houses at every point visited and that Victoria will not prove an exception is indicated by the interest that has been shown by local play-goers in this engagement ever since the news reached here that Canada was at last to hear Gilbert and Sullivan as presented by this famous organization.

In selecting "The Gondoliers" for presentation here the management here had in mind the keen interest which Victorians have always displayed in good music as it is claimed by many that this opera is one of the musical gems of the Gilbert and Sullivan cycle.

The company numbers over seventy and includes such well known stars as: Henry Lytton, Bertha Lewis, Leo Sheffield, Darrell Fancourt, Charles Goulding, Winifred Lawson, Irene Hill, Aileen Davies and others of equal note. A specially selected orchestra is carried and the scenery was painted especially for this tour.

B.C. INVESTORS FAIL TO GET THEIR SHARE OF MINING PROFITS

Over $8,000,000 Dividends Paid by Mines Here Last Year, Galloway Says

British Columbians, through lack of proper investment in the industry here, are not getting their share of the profits which are coming in from the mines of this province, J. D. Galloway, provincial mineralogist, told the meeting of the Prospectors' Association at the Victoria Club last night.

"Last year there was a mining production of $47,750,000 in British Columbia and twenty-five per cent. of this total represented profit and the dividends amounted to over $8,000,000," Mr. Galloway said.

"These dividends last year amounted to $13 or $14 per capita in this province, but there were not many people in the Province who actually got their share of these dividends because so much of the capital for the development of these mines came from outside. It is desirable that more of the dividends from our mines go to the people of this Province as experience shows that much of the money so obtained is put back into developing more industry here."

GOOD BROKER AN ASSET
Mr. Galloway spoke chiefly on the relation of the broker and the brokerage houses to the mining industry and dealt with the question of mining speculation.

"The good broker may be a very valuable asset to the mining industry," Mr. Galloway said. "Some people seem to think that the public never gets the chance to get into the good properties as such properties are picked up and closely held by the big companies. But that is not the case. All you have to do is to look up the history of the mines of this continent to see that the public has had lots of opportunity to get into the good mines at their start."

METAL CONSUMPTION GROWING

There have been more metals used in the first twenty-six years of this century than in all history. The rate of consumption of metals increases with our civilization. The result is that metal prices are gradually going up and those companies with large stocks of metals are making a profit by this condition in the future.

SPECULATIVE OPPORTUNITIES GREAT

"It is in the companies which are in the development stage, and which have not reached the dividend stage, that there are the chances of big speculative gains. In the last five years substantial appreciation has taken place in the mining stocks of British Columbia, and a great deal more money has been made by speculation in British Columbia mining stocks in the last five years than has been lost in such speculation in the same time."

Mr. Galloway declared that one reason outside capital got better returns on its mining investments here was that there was capital got better and more expert advice.

"Much of our British Columbia capital has been poorly advised and has not got the returns it should have," he went on. "What we need is brokers clever enough and intelligent enough to advise the public on mining stocks."

SPECULATION ADVANTAGEOUS

"Speculation is not a sin. All progress in the world is due to the speculative instinct of mankind. Without speculation we would still be living in the stone age."

"The broker should advise his clients to spread their risk. Nobody should put all his money for speculation into one big company. Mining offers opportunities for speculative gain far in excess of the average business. In some instances much profit is available from small investments in mining. The broker who gives competent advice is the one who makes more money in the long run."

REFUSE PETITION TO ALTER OAK BAY COMMERCIAL ZONE

Oak Bay Council Maintains Stand on St. Patrick Street Question

Following up a request by letter at the last meeting of the Oak Bay Council, J. A. Walker & Company presented a petition to the council at its regular meeting last night requesting that land at the corner of St. Patrick and Central Streets be removed from the commercial zone.

The petition was signed by holders of seven of the lots affected. As in regard to the first request from the company, the council refused to grant the deletion of this area from the commercial zone and in the motion passed against it, referred to the fact that the intention to put the said portion in the commercial zone was under consideration for several months.

Comments were received. No unfavorable comments were received.

EXTENSION GRANTED
A request from the Oak Bay School Board for extension of time for submitting estimates for extraordinary expenditures be given till March 10 was granted. The proposal to include an item of $2,225 for furniture in the Monterey School in ordinary expenditures was refused for a second time.

A report was received from the assessor stating that the total reductions given by the court of revision were $28,890 on land and $13,260 on improvements. The total taxable property in the municipality is now as follows: Land, $3,220,596; improvements, $1,956,540.

The Franciscan Poor Clare Nuns, 2059 Haultain Street, were refused the right to build vaults on their property for the burial of sisters who may die in the monastery.

Authorization was given for the purchase of one carload of tarras for road repairs.

In the absence of Reeve H. Anson, Acting Reeve E. C. Hayward presided.

Sounds logical, don't it? Except when I tell you that nearly everybody in town figures the same way and in the middle of last summer we were over a month behind in deliveries of wood that was not as good in quality as that which we are getting right now. ### Vancouver Players Win Their Matches At Montreal To-day

Montreal, March 4.—Miss E. George of Vancouver, continued her string of victories by defeating Miss D. Mowat of Montreal, 14-15, 11-2; in the third round of the singles competition of the Dominion badminton championship tournament held this morning. In the ladies' singles, fourth round, the Vancouver pair, Mrs. Partington and Miss George, defeated Mrs. Malcolm and Mrs. Archibald, Montreal, 11-15, 15-12, 15-7.

Miss George and Mrs. Partington hurdled a severe obstacle in their bid for title honors when they defeated Mrs. Archibald and Mrs. Malcolm, Montreal, the Quebec provincial champions. In the fourth round an extra set was necessary to decide the winners. Montreal took the first game 11-15, but the westerners rallied to win in the second, 15-12. Playing superbly in the deciding set, Miss George and Mrs. Partington won 15-7.

What was the best match so far, saw D. G. MacLaren, Montreal, defeat J. G. Muir, Vancouver, in a strenuous singles encounter and incidentally qualifying for the semifinals. The scores—15-8, 10-15, 15-13. C. W. Aikman, present singles champion, defeated A. B. Massey, Toronto, 15-4, 15-8. J. E. Purcell, Toronto, and J. Underhill, Vancouver, are the other semi-finalists. ### HOUSE KILLS MEASURES FEATURES OF NEW REAL ESTATE BILL

Measure Mangled by Members Who Object to Too Much Control

Legislation designed to govern the operations of real estate agents was badly mangled by the Legislature this morning, the most important clauses being deleted altogether.

This decision follows a sharp attack on the Government's bill by Mr. Brice, Mr. Victor O'Brien, Liberal, Vancouver, and emphatic objections to it from H. G. Perry, Liberal, Port George. Mr. Perry protested against continued attempts to control everything by legislation.

In the end the main clause of the bill demanding a bond from real estate salesmen was deleted in committee.

"Will the Government resign now?" asked Colonel Cyrus Peck, V.C. of the Islands, when members of the Government laughed good-naturedly.

LECTURER TELLS OF O'NEILL'S GREATNESS

Prof. F. W. Wilcox Speaks at University Extension Course Meeting

In spite of the fact that many of Eugene O'Neill's plays have been accounted failures by some critics, they are, nevertheless, much greater than most conventional modern dramas. Even at his weakest O'Neill is more in touch with reality than his contemporaries, and this stamps him as the most original living playwright of England or America. This was demonstrated by Professor Wilcox, A.B., Ph.D., in the University Extension lecture given at Victoria College last night.

The lecturer first gave an outline of the writer's life, which had a very great effect on his work. O'Neill was born in 1895, the son of James O'Neill, a successful actor. During his childhood the young O'Neill travelled with his father and wherever they were acting. Having received some education, he entered Princeton University, but he was requested to leave this institution owing to his disorderly conduct. After prospecting for a time in California, he went in a ship to Buenos Ayres, where he lived in a waterfront hotel. He worked hard and was able to provide food and what was more important to him, drink. In this environment he came in touch with the very type of humanity to which he was to devote his life. He returned to America to become an actor, shortly after which he turned to literature. His first successes were one-act plays, which were produced by the Provincetown Players of New York. These plays were exceedingly sensational, but though rather crude in theme, they were full of vigor and life. The lecturer mentioned the play, "Thirst," as a typical example of this period, showing how O'Neill's life in the waterfront dives reflected itself in his work. In "The Moon of the Caribbees," another play of this period, the lecturer pointed out the reality of the sailor's life which the playwright has given us, as well as the spirit of romance of the tropical sea.

"Beyond the Horizon" was the first of O'Neill's longer plays to bring him recognition as the greatest playwright of modern times. In this, as in some of his earlier work, O'Neill has brought about a union between true literature and drama. "Beyond the Horizon" portrays the tragedy of three lives due to no fault of the character but rather to fate. This tragedy contains O'Neill's idea of life's irony.

In the "Hairy Ape" the writer symbolizes the lowest class of humanity by a sailor of the stoke-hole, Yank, a man who, best of men, the lecturer shows thereby that everybody has his own place, and he uses Yank, the symbol of a futilely revolting class, to prove his point. Prof. Wilcox showed that in "Ann Christie" and "Desire Under the Elms" O'Neill gave a broader and saner view of life. In these plays he portrayed some good in his characters.

The lecturer then pointed out Eugene O'Neill's faults. Firstly, that he had a tendency to overwork his play with so many ideas that he was unable to put them down clearly, thus making the meaning somewhat obscure. Secondly, he lacked the appreciation of the good in life, and was inclined to deal too much with its sordid and seamy side. The president, Mr. Fuller, thanked the speaker for his very interesting address. The secretary of the association announced that the next lecture would be "Main Currents in Post-War Europe," by Prof. F. H. Soward, on March 17, at Victoria College.

MANSON HAS DOUBTS AS TO WHETHER TO PERMIT LIQUOR TRAFFIC

Fears Results of Bottled Beer Sale in Parlors as Suggested

Attorney-General Not Entirely Satisfied With Brewers and Distillers

New liquor legislation started through the mill of the Legislature to-day with the significant remark of Attorney-General Manson that he was not entirely satisfied with the operations of British Columbia brewers and distillers.

When his Liquor Act amendments came up in committee, Mr. Manson indicated that he would have more to say about private gain in the Government's liquor business later. So long as there is private profit in the liquor business there will be danger of trouble, Mr. Manson declared. For this reason he had grave fears about liquor act amendments proposed by H. G. Perry, Liberal, Port George, under which beer parlors could sell beer by the bottle as well as by the glass.

Mr. Perry strongly advocated the sale of bottled beer in beer parlors for the benefit of those who wished to drink the beverage in their own homes and were not living conveniently near a Government liquor store. The liquor bill did not get far in committee when discussion was adjourned.

CITY MILL OPENS TO EXPORT AUSTRALIA LUMBER CONTRACTS

Closed For Some Weeks, Moore and Whittington to Operate Again Monday

Indicating a revival of the lumbering industry here in consequence of new orders from Australia, the Moore-Whittington lumber mill will open up its works again on Monday morning after a period of several weeks inactivity. During the quiet period only thirty men have been employed at the plant, but on Monday the crew in the mill will number over eighty men.

Australian orders came through recently, said William Moore, senior partner, and the prices are fair. More orders are expected shortly. "We will be using fifty more men starting Monday," Mr. Moore stated to-day.

EVENTS OF PIONEER DAYS PICTURED IN SPLENDID EXHIBIT

Canadian History Portrayed in Collection on View at Empress Hotel

There is a lamentable dearth in Canada of historical pictures dealing with Canadian events. For this reason unusual interest attaches to an exhibit of original paintings and colored engravings which will be on view at the Empress Hotel ballroom this evening until 9 o'clock, and tomorrow from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., free of charge.

The exhibition is being shown by Thomas Nelson and Sons Limited, publishers of historical pictures, who arranged for the series in response to a demand for historical pictures illustrating the main episodes of Canadian history and suitable for the walls of schools, libraries and other institutions.

Two Canadian artists, C. W. Jefferys, R.C.A., and the late Henry Sandham, R.C.A., were commissioned to paint the series and the result is a collection of twelve pictures reflecting not only brilliant technical skill and imagination but the most careful historical research. The pictures include "Champlain Discovers Georgian Bay," showing the intrepid French discoverer with his Indian guides looking out across the bay; "The Meeting of the Fur Traders," with hardy trappers meeting the traders of the Old Land in a picturesque gathering; "Jacques Cartier Erects the Cross," depicting the French pioneer saluting the emblem of Christianity; "Wolfe's Landing at Quebec," "Laura Secord," "The Order of Good Cheer," a notable scene in a fort in the early days; "La Verendrye"; "Mackenzie at the Pacific," with the explorer and several of his men gazing out over a typical British Columbia coast scene; "The Founding of Halifax," with its busy scene of depicting the heaving of the logs and the erection of the fort; "Pioneer," a sturdy settler of the eighteenth century sowing the seed in the little clearing hewn out of the virgin forest.

From both the educational and artistic points of view the pictures are remarkable, and the coincidence of their publication—at a very modest price—coincides with the jubilee of Confederation suggests that they would make a most appropriate memento of the historic occasion.

All those who are interested in the technical and instructive exhibit, which represents an all-Canadian undertaking.

NEW INVENTION, IONOTONE, ON MARKET IN B.C.

This company has commodious quarters in the Pemberton Building, where treatments may be had, with nurses in attendance. Oliver Hemphill, who has had considerable experience in this new scientific development, is manager of the Canadian branches. It is the intention of the company to open branches in many Canadian cities. The company is incorporated in British Columbia and is controlled by the Circletone Company, Inc. of Los Angeles.

The principle of the invention is explained by Mr. Hemphill in the simplest of terms. He says:

"The iron in the blood performs an important function of acting as a catalyst. Scientifically, it is discovered that, first, no oxidation can take place except through this catalytic action of the iron; second, that it is not a lack of iron in the blood that causes sickness, it is the lack of iron in the blood, which is the cause of the trouble. In our foods, the air we breathe, in the sunshine we absorb, nature has given us every chemical and ingredient required by our systems. 'Profoundly the most important is the oxygen in the air we breathe. Breathing is not enough. The oxygen must also be completely assimilated by the cells, tissues and glands, or they will become starved, cease to function properly, and soon seriously affect the entire system. The iron in the system, when normal, assists the cells, tissues and glands in the assimilation of oxygen. When abnormal, it neutralizes these benefits. By the use of IONOTONE the iron is kept in or restored to a proper condition to properly catalyze the oxygen in the blood. From then on, nature takes her course."

DENIES U.S. GIVEN PREFERENCE IN BIG ISLAND POWER DEAL

Canadian Interests Allowed Full Opportunity at Campbell River, Says Pattullo

Hinchliffe Fears Power Shortage on Island as Result of Sale

Hon. T. D. Pattullo, Minister of Lands, denied in the Legislature to-day a suggestion by Joshua Hinchliffe, Conservative, Victoria, that British interests had been overlooked in favor of a United States company in the award of water-power concessions at Campbell River for pulp and paper and other development.

Speaking to the second reading of the Government measure, implementing the authority conferred on the Crown Willamette Paper Company Mr. Hinchliffe said his information was that British and Canadian interests were prepared to take up the power proposition, and that they were informed by the Minister that their application would be considered first. Afterwards, he said, they were informed that others had made an application ahead of them.

"Your information is not correct," said Mr. Pattullo. For sixteen years the Campbell River Falls have been held under reserve to local interests. They were negotiating with British interests, who always had an opportunity to come in, but they never came in."

FEARS POWER SHORTAGE

"I am given to understand," said Mr. Hinchliffe, "that the whole of the Campbell River power is to be used for paper and pulp mills. A warning has been issued by the Bank of Montreal that the market is likely to change from a seller's market to a buyer's market, owing to the rapidity of development recently in the Dominion. That is so with the case of Quebec."

The Minister, replying to this, said that it was not intended that the whole power should be for paper and pulp. The company might decide later to sell power. The application, he said, would have to go before the Water Board. Applicants would be given time to develop a certain amount of power and, if they did not comply with the regulations, the water might become available to the Government, or the people or to private endeavor, he explained. "These things had all been considered."

"I am further informed that there may be no power available to Nanaimo and other cities in the future, and that they will have to depend for their sources on power in the southern end of Vancouver Island," Mr. Hinchliffe declared.

OLD AGE PENSION BILL IS ADVANCED

Eight of Its Twenty Clauses Approved by Commons in Committee

Ottawa, March 4.—Old age pensions were discussed at length by the House in committee yesterday. Eight of the twenty clauses in the bill were approved and progress was reported late last night.

Two amendments were moved and both were ruled out of order. L. J. Ladner, Conservative, Vancouver South, seconded by William Irvine, U.F.A., Wetaskiwin, moved in amendment that the Government should bear seventy-five per cent of the cost of the scheme in place of fifty per cent, the various provinces to contribute the balance.

The other amendment was presented by Hon. R. J. Manion, Conservative, Fort William, to permit payment of pensions to returned soldiers at sixty-five years of age, in place of seventy. General J. A. Clark, Conservative, Vancouver-Burrard seconded Mr. Manion's amendment.

Deputy Speaker Johnston in ruling both amendments out of order, declared he did so for the reason that an amendment to increase expenditures could not be moved by a private member.

HEENAN'S VIEWS

When it was stated no motion to increase the Federal Government's share would be entertained unless moved by a minister, Mr. Ladner called upon Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Labor, to move such an amendment.

Mr. Heenan said he was more anxious than anything else that the old age pensions bill become law, and the danger was that it would be killed by its friends. It would have a better chance of passing both Houses of Parliament if the amount the Dominion was to pay was left at fifty per cent. Last year the Senate had killed the measure because it meant an expenditure of $12,000,000. Since then this bill had been endorsed and he wanted it to go back to the Upper House just as it had been endorsed.

J. S. Woodsworth, Labor, Winnipeg North Centre, thought the item of the percentage to be paid by the Federal Treasury should be left over in order that the Cabinet might reconsider it.

W. K. Ewing, Conservative, Kootenay West, questioned if Quebec province would come into the scheme and bear an estimated annual expenditure of more than $3,000,000.

General, said he believed Quebec would participate in any social legislation. Let the provinces do their share and the Federal Government would do its share, he said.

Hon. J. W. Edwards, Conservative, Frontenac-Addington, Ontario, said the Government was making a bluff, and later it would no doubt claim the provinces would fail to support it.

The bill was of no use on a fifty per cent contribution basis, he said. "I cannot see how it could be."

ON SAILING SHIPS

Born in Liverpool in 1861 of Scottish parentage, Capt. Logan commenced his marine career on sailing ships and later served his time in the British navy. Efficient in training and already showing signs of expert seamanship, he rose to the position of master mariner and for several years sailed as captain on vessels of the Leyland Line plying in the Mediterranean and North Atlantic trade routes.

His association with the London Salvage Company began with a position in Montreal where, for some time, he acted as their representative. His work connection with salvaging became noticeable then, and his expert faculty of estimating damage to vessels almost at a glance and his wonderful knowledge of shipbuilding, ship repairing and seamanship became a by-word.

FIRST COAST JOB

In 1908 he was called out to superintend the salvage of a large vessel on a coral island in the South Seas. This was an exceedingly difficult feat and took six weeks to perform successfully. After its completion he was offered a position as representative of the company on the Pacific Coast, and since that time he has been a Victoria resident, and has had charge of all the salvage done in connection with the Panama Canal to Alaska.

Among some of the salvage efforts which he had in hand, were the raising of the S.S. Newport from the bottom of the Gulf of the Georgia at Prince Rupert, which was raised from Swanton Bay after a very arduous task; the Admiral Watson, raised from Seattle Harbor; the Princess Adelaide, in Puget Sound; the S.S. Siberian Prince, the Remedy, wrecked a few years ago on Bentinck Island, and many others too numerous to mention. His last salvage job was just lately completed, this being the Kalky Maru.

All the works in which he was engaged were always personally directed by him. His fine performance in saving the Kalky Maru was commensurate after days of sleepless preparation. She lay on a pinnacle rock, with deep waters all around, with terrific tides pulling her and her bottom torn open almost from stem to stern. Logan's ceaseless care and vigilance saved her. It was reported by the men on the job that he had not slept for three days and nights immediately before the actual effort of refloating the wreck was attempted.

In the opinion of Sir Joseph Lowry, chairman of the London Salvage Association, who was on this coast last year, Capt. Logan was the finest salvage operator in the world. Sir Joseph declared at that time that he valued no man's opinion on a salvage matter than he did that of Capt. Logan.

DESIGNED SALVAGE KING

A tribute to his memory and one which will be employed probably for years to come in the work to which Capt. Logan devoted his life, is the salvage vessel Salvage King, of which he was the principal designer. This vessel was built in England three years ago, and much of her salvage apparatus and fittings were of his own ideas.

On all the Pacific Coast, Capt. Logan was the last word when marine work and salvaging was concerned. He was an authority on practically everything connected with ships and when he talked everybody listened. He was looked up to by his ship-building organizations both in the British Empire, the United States and even Japan, and

On the S.S. Salvage King of the Pacific Salvage Company, which vessel has worked under his superintendence on a number of operations, the crew this morning expressed the greatest regret at his passing. In life, they said, he was one of the finest men they knew, and one member paid an expressive tribute to him saying: "They may try to fill his position, but no one will ever fill it like he did."

OUTSTANDING FEAT

One of the outstanding points in his career in salvage work on the coast was the refloating of the steamer Sesostris, which was stranded on the shore of Guatemala and lifted high and dry by tidal convulsion.

The Sesostris had been lying several hundred yards from the shore for eleven years, and presented a monstrous task. Fortunately the vessel had been kept in good condition by a speculator, who hoped to profit by his trouble, and the expense of getting the vessel out was considered worth-while.

The vessel was lying broadside to the sea and the first difficulty was to get it straight. Excavations were made all round it, a channel dug to the sea and water pumped in. The Sesostris was turned round and then after weeks of effort, finally pulled into the ocean and towed here.

SAILOR ACCQUITTED ON DRIVING CHARGE

Not Proved He Wilfully Ran Into Cyclist, Says Assize Judge

Requested by Mr. Justice Morrison to do so, the jury returned a verdict of not guilty at the Victoria Assizes yesterday afternoon in the case of Gunner W. T. H. Rees, charged with causing grievous bodily harm to James Pickard, a cyclist, whom he knocked off his bicycle when he ran into him with an automobile at the corner of Bay and Douglas Streets November 1.

Pickard was five weeks in hospital as a result of the accident. Rees met his hospital expenses during that time.

There had been no evidence to show that there had been any wilful misconduct or neglect on the part of Rees, the judge said.

He had no sympathy with drivers who drove cars while under the influence of liquor, but he pointed out, accused had not been charged under that section of the code. Under the section of the code on which he had stood trial it must be shown that he drove his car wantonly or furiously, or that he intended to run into Pickard.

Big Problem Solved

After Centuries of Debate, Rhubarb Declared Vegetable

At last a grave question has been definitely settled—a question that has perplexed professors, and corrugated the brow of a minister of the Crown—the last Minister expected to make it—but with all the force and authority that characterizes Ministerial declarations and the Legislature has meekly accepted it.

Rhubarb is a vegetable! It was during the debate on the Produce Marketing Bill yesterday that Joseph Hinchliffe, of Victoria, propounded the perplexity. He asked whether rhubarb would be controlled by a fruit committee or a vegetable committee.

The House was staggered. Dr. H. C. Winch, father of the bill, rose in his place. His face was a study. He looked about the marble hall and at the serious, attentive faces of his fellow legislators.

Mrs. Smith leaned forward in her seat. Premier Oliver despite his years of delving and dicking the land could not on the spur of the moment come to the aid of his distressed fellow.

The Doctor hesitated, stammered for a moment, and then said this was a matter that had not been considered by the Agricultural Committee. He looked across the floor at J. W. Jones of South Okanagan, who had been a member of the committee, and who invariably has an answer to every question. "But Mr. Jones was silent."

Then, when even Capt. Ian Mackenzie could not assist him, when the Minister of Agriculture himself was in obvious doubt—then rose Hon. T. D. Pattullo, Minister of Lands.

"Rhubarb," he said and paused amid tense silence. "Rhubarb," said the Minister, "is a vegetable."

"A great problem was settled for all time."

MAN AND WIFE TO RECEIVE SENTENCE

Angelo Sposito and Mrs. Sposito Guilty of Retaining Stolen Liquor

Found guilty of retaining whisky for the theft of which Capt. Warrington, mate of the seized liquor ship Chris Moeller is serving a six months' term, Angelo Sposito and his wife Maria Sposito will receive their sentence before the Spring Assizes in Victoria.

The jury brought in their verdict at 4:50 o'clock last night after three hours of deliberation. The two accused were found guilty on the second count of receiving the liquor knowing it to have been stolen.

Alexis Martin was Crown prosecutor. R. C. Lowe appeared for the accused.

Evidence was given by Leslie Jones, a taxi driver, that he received a request from Captain Warrington for a taxi and he drove with him to Captain Sposito's home, 1655 Yates Street. Warrington placed four cases on the veranda knocker to the window and Mrs. Sposito came to the door. The captain then returned to the car and other deliveries were made at the knocker to the back porch, pieces of wood which resembled the wood used in the cases in which the Chris Moeller liquor was packed. Two cases of whisky of the same brand contained in the Chris Moeller cargo were also found.

Mrs. Sposito said that they had been delivered by a friend as New Year's presents. Her husband was sick when they arrived but on seeing them and stating that they did not seem to be Government control liquor, had created the idea of giving it to him back. The customs officer mentioned there were thirty-six cases missing from the Chris Moeller altogether.

Evidence that the liquor was a present and its return was intended was given by both defendants.

Thistles Ready For Test With Esquimalt

Saanich Youngsters Ready for Semi-final Game With Dockers in Jackson Cup Series and Interest of Fans Has Been Stirred; Big Crowd Expected to Watch Teams Perform; Both Clubs Strong and Confident; Ex-High and Five C's Play in O. B. Allan Cup Finals; Juvenile Games

Opponents for Victoria City in the finals of the Jackson Cup series will be determined to-morrow afternoon at the Royal Athletic Park, when the Saanich Thistles and Esquimalt meet. The kick-off will be at 3 o'clock and Frank Saunders will be the referee.

Interest in the outcome of this game is extremely high, and one of the biggest crowds of the season is expected. Up until a few weeks ago the meeting of these teams would have meant little, as Esquimalt would have been counted on as certain winners. Following the Thistles' 1-0 victory over Esquimalt, at full strength at the time, interest revived and caused considerable speculation.

EXPERIENCE MAY COUNT

There is a feeling in some quarters that Esquimalt's greater experience will prove a deciding factor in to-morrow's game and that the Thistles will meet their Waterloo.

The Thistles, however, possess abundance of speed and endurance, and provided they have any success in front of the net, will give Esquimalt plenty to worry about.

The Dockers are taking the game seriously, as they realize that defeat means to an end of their quest of the provincial championship. The winner of the Jackson Cup series will meet the Upper Island champions in the semi-finals for the right to encounter the Mainland winners.

Esquimalt will have Tommy Bridges in goal and Joe Watt and Mesher in front of him. Hosmer, Splers and Hay will be the half-backs, with the forward line including Stewart, John Watt, Coulter, Warren and Wagland. DeCosta and McKay will be the substitutes.

The Thistles are disappointed in not having Thomas, their fleet outside line, available for service to-morrow, but Burns will be back at centre forward, which will help the shooting division. Harper will be in goal, with Kennedy and Price directly in front of him. The half-backs will be Millar, Crowe and Gandy. On the forward line will be Windie, Minnis, Burns, Cameron and Keimann. D'Arcy will be the substitute.

Supporters of the Junior League will have a good game to meet up to them at Beacon Hill when the Ex-High School and Five C's meet in the finals of the local series for the O. B. Allan Cup. The winners of this match will meet the victor of the Upper Island series in Victoria on March 26.

The game between the Ex-High and Five C's should be one of the keenest fought in the Junior League this year. The lads play fine foot ball, are in good condition, step fast and can stand the pace.

James Walker, secretary of the Juniors, announced this morning that a new juvenile series had been arranged and that entries must be in his hands by March 7.

To-morrow's Juvenile League games will be as follows: Three C's vs. Saanich Rovers "A," at Royal Athletic Park.

Saanich Thistles vs. Saanich Rovers "B," at Beacon Hill upper ground.

Esquimalt vs. Burnside Tillamans, at Beacon Hill lower ground.

James Bay vs. Royal Oak Midgets, at Heywood Avenue.

All juvenile games will commence at 3 o'clock to give the youngsters an opportunity to witness the O. B. Allan Cup game at Beacon Hill.

The juvenile teams will be: Esquimalt—Chalmers, Banks and Sweeney; Hicks, Cochrane and Bain; Thompson, Bendall, Burnett, Green and Williams. Reserve, Standen and Watson.

James Bay—Brown, Killick and Margison; Fraser, A. Smith and Lorimer; J. Smith, Gelling, Terry, Allan, Davey and R. Brown.

Saanich Rovers—H. Reid, C. Potter, D. Harvey, A. McPhee, G. Scott, D. Scott, M. Paddock, Hemlin, McQueen, Obe, Rosema, Spares, Hutchinson, Johnson, MacLeod, Dempsey.

Those having "B" sweaters are requested to hand them to A. McPhee before 2:30 to-morrow.

Royal Oak—Punt, Martin, Robbins; Allison, Scruton, Campbell; Browne, Robbins, Fye, Blanco, Thorpe. Reserves, Connorton, Magee and Blanco.

Owens in Lead

Chris Owens gained a lead of 419 points over Bert Irish in the first round of a 2,000-point billiard match, which was played at the Veterans of France clubrooms last night.

The first half ended with Owens still in play with 1,007 and Irish, 583. Owens' high break was 89, 67, 65, 55, 47, 44, 44, 41, and Irish's 64, 51, 46, 39, 38, 35 and 31.

SHOOTING DEADLY

PETE LEPINE

Although a substitute for Howie Morenz at centre, Lepine is looked upon as one of the greatest centre men in hockey to-day. He scored three goals for Canadiens last night against Chicago. He is a very clean player, as well as being tricky and fast.

Fort William, March 4.—Port Arthur, holders of the Allan Cup, emblematic of the amateur hockey championship of Canada, will not defend their honors this year, owing to the fact that they suffered defeat at the hands of Port William last night in the play-off of the Thunder Bay League.

The Forts won the first game by 2-1 and shut out the Ports last night by 2-0, winning the round by 4-1.

Port Arthur held high hopes of winning again this year in order to make the trip to the Olympic games in 1928. Before the season started they made a system. They lost Chicago and played in Victoria, Vancouver and Portland.

Their team this year suffered certain changes owing to the raids made by the professionals. They lost Chabot, their star goalie, to the New York Rangers, and Brydges to the Toronto St. Pats.

Fort William held together the team they mustered last year and developed a system, which finally subdued Port Arthur.

COMING WESTWARD
Fort William will now meet the winners of the Thunder Bay League, it is expected here that the Fort will figure in the finals which are to be staged in Vancouver. The Varsity Grade, of Toronto, are favored to win the Eastern championship, and make the finals.

Winnipeg, March 4.—In a closely-fought contest Winnipeg Maroons last night defeated Duluth, 1-0, and increased their lead in the American Hockey League.

Brandon, March 4.—The Elmwood Millionaires, of Winnipeg, advanced a step nearer the Manitoba Junior Hockey championship last night when they played a 3-3 tie with Brandon in the second game of the semi-final series. Elmwood won the third, 3-5.

Calgary, March 4.—Defeating Lacombe 2-1 last night, Calgary Wheat Kernels will go into the second game of the intermediate provincial hockey finals with a one-goal lead at Lacombe Saturday night.

Calgary, March 4.—Calgary Canadians, junior hockey champions of Canada, suffered a 3-1 reverse at Blairmore last night. The second game of the junior provincial final will be played in Calgary Friday night.

St. Paul, Minn., March 4.—In an overtime game here last night, Minneapolis held St. Paul to a tie of 1-1, and now have a chance for a championship playoff berth in the American Hockey Association.

Toronto, March 4.—Owen Sound Greys defeated Newmarket by five goals to 1 in the first game of the Ontario Hockey Association junior finals played here to-night.

The return game will be played here on Tuesday, March 15.

Brantford, Ont., March 4.—The Royal Military College team of Kingston defeated the Western University team here last night, 3-2 in a sudden-death game for the Ontario intermediate inter-collegiate hockey championship.

Toronto, March 4.—Overcoming the visitors' one-goal lead secured in the first game at Kingston a fortnight ago, University of Toronto scored captured the championship of the women's inter-collegiate hockey union by shutting out Queens University by a score of 2-0 here last night.

On Sunday a medal competition will be held.

Semi-finalists of Cup Ties Arise To-morrow

All That Are Left of Sixty-four Teams Which Started Last December After English Cup Will Meet in Important Matches; Only Two First Division Teams Interested; Fourth Round of Scottish Cup Also Will Be Decided To-morrow

London, March 4 (Canadian Press Cable).—Four teams from the "Home Counties," one from the south coast, two from Wales and one from the Midlands, are all that now remain of the sixty-four which started out last December to make a name for themselves in the annual competition for the English Cup, and should play on Saturday that number will be cut down to four with the next step the semi-finals.

The most notable, however, is the fact that of the surviving eight, only two belong to the first division of the English League. Arsenal and Cardiff City are alone left to uphold the glory of the senior department, while no fewer than five teams belong to the second string. Millwall represents the third division. The draw for the sixth round follows:

Chelsea-Cardiff City.
Arsenal-Wolverhampton.
Swansea-Reading.
Millwall-Southampton.

Glasgow, March 4 (Canadian Press Cable).—Chief interest in the fourth round of the Scottish Cup which will be decided on Saturday is directed at Bo'ness, where the leaders of the Second Division of the league are drawn to meet the all-conquering Celtic. The quarter finals are evenly divided between the east and west of Scotland with two teams from West Lothian to hold the balance. Dundee United, East Fife and Arbroath will uphold the honor of the eastern section of the country against Glasgow Rangers, Celtic and Partick, who will uphold the Western Metropolis, while Bo'ness and Falkirk come between.

Rugby Champions Are Entertained By High-Y Club

The members of the High-Y Club entertained the boys of the Victoria High School rugby team, British Columbia High School champions and holders of the Thompson Cup, at a banquet which was held in the dining-room of the Y.M.C.A. last night.

The boys of the High-Y, provided the entertainment, and did most of the catering. Nearly forty sat down at the festive board, with the president, Robert Shaw, presiding. Among the invited guests were Ira Dilworth, principal of the Victoria High School, and past master of the High-Y Club, Harry Smith, coach and trainer of the "High" fifteens for many years.

Mr. Heinze, boys' secretary of the Y.M.C.A. and a constitutional member of the High-Y, Mr. Roper, boys' physical instructor of the High-Y School and Mr. McEwen, who designed the artistic programmes that were provided.

Mr. Webster, present advisor of the club, and to whose untiring labor much of the evening's success was due, was also present. Larry Kennedy, skipper of the squad, and Pete Turgoose, Smith, LeMarquand, Cudlip, Shaw, Beck, Potts, White, Baker, Potter, Warnock, Dawson, Kinsman, Killick and Muford, were the guests of the club, and were welcomed by Norman McConnell in a pleasant little speech.

Those who contributed to the programme were Charles Smith, who gave a hearty encore selection on his Hawaiian guitar and Reginald Hammond, who delighted the party with some fine cello solos, accompanied on the piano by William Rickard. Numerous choruses were sung by all.

Harry Smith expressed the appreciation of the guests for the banquet and entertainment, and Capt. Kennedy heartily seconded the vote of thanks to the High-Y boys.

Ira Dilworth brought the evening to a close in a brief address to the rugby fifteen, congratulating them on their two successive victories and adding his thanks to those of Mr. Smith for the evening's entertainment.

Resume Competitions
The regular men's monthly and boys' competition at the Macaulay Point Golf Club are to be resumed. On Sunday a medal competition will be held.

Keep Friday, March 4, open for Esquimalt Scottish Daughters' dance at Rex Theatre, Esquimalt.

MIKE MCGIGUE

Despite a valiant fight McGigue fell before the aggressiveness of youth last night in New York when Jack Sharkey beat him in the twelfth round.

Ruth Will Receive $454 For Each Game On Schedule In 1927

Babe's Income in Sport Now Only Exceeded by That Earned by Gene Tunney

Crowd of Agents Trail Bambino With Contracts; Reports to Training Camp

New York, March 4.—Babe Ruth, who on Wednesday agreed to a three-year contract with the New York Yankees at an annual salary of $70,000, will receive $454.55 for each of the 154 scheduled games in the coming season.

If Ruth comes to bat at an average of four times a game, he can count $113.54 added to the bankroll after each trip, although he may allow himself a larger split for home runs than for strikeouts.

The catching of flies in Ruth's right field section also will be expensive for the Yankees, for by cutting Babe's play into batting and fielding halves, the Yankees will have to pay him in making an average of three putouts a game.

The Babe's annual salary of $70,000 for the next three years is out-ranked only by Gene Tunney's estimated earnings of $100,000 a year. Ruth says he received $75,000 for the moving picture he made recently, and he plans to make more in the future. He has contracted to write syndicate baseball yarns to appear daily during the coming season.

The event was put off until to-day, after which the home-run king will pack his grips for the trek to the Southern training camp on Saturday.

OVER GOES A LEAF
Friends ventured the opinion that Ruth decidedly had "turned over a new financial leaf" as announcement of his movements for the day were disclosed by Arthur McGovern, his trainer. McGovern said the big lefthander definitely arranged his trust fund plans with a New York bank.

Babe added his signature to no new cinema agreement, but admitted that negotiations were actually completed for his return to Hollywood next winter. Representatives of sporting goods houses trailed him in quest of his endorsement for bats, balls, gloves and golf sticks.

Babe went to the income tax problem early in the day, but after a half hour's tussle he admitted Uncle Sam "had him licked" and dumped the problem on his lawyer. According to McGovern, Babe's earnings last year ran close to $250,000.

Between business engagements, Ruth sandwiched an hour of training. After pounding a handball, tossing the dumbbells and steaming out, Babe hopped on the scales and saw the beam swing over to 215 pounds.

S.S. Basketball
Christ Church Junior boys will meet the Oak Bay Juniors at the Fairfield gymnasium to-night at 7 o'clock in a Sunday School Basketball League game.

Sharkey and Maloney Now Main Contenders

Two Rugged Boston Fighters Stand Head and Shoulders Above Other Aspirants for Tunney's Championship; Plenty of Thrills, Gore and Color in Meeting of Sharkey and McGigue; Mike Loses on Technical Knockout in the Twelfth When Blood Vessel in Jaw Breaks; Sharkey Too Young and Strong

New York, March 4.—Two rugged Boston heavyweights, Jack Sharkey and Jimmy Maloney, to-day stood head and shoulders above all aspirants for the championship held by Gene Tunney. Setting of the stage for the final of Tex Rickard's elimination tournament came through the most dramatic encounter of the series last night, when Sharkey scored a technical knockout over the veteran Irishman, Mike McGigue, in the twelfth round of a fifteen-round match at Madison Square Garden.

Maloney won his spurs two weeks ago by outpointing Jack Delaney, light heavyweight champion, in ten rounds.

More thrills, gore and color sprinkled Sharkey's victory. Last night he has been pummeled into all the previous battles of the tournament, and again it was the struggle of another "good little man"—another Delaney—against a rugged "good big man"—another Maloney—with the result adding proof of the time-worn axiom that "no good little man can ever beat a good big man."

In defeat, McGigue was as stirring a figure as ever. He has been since starting a sensational knockout campaign that numbered Paul Benicovich among his victims and brought the Irish warrior to the greatest opportunity of his career almost at the sunset of his fighting days. Victory meant a match with Maloney, then perhaps Tunney and the heavyweight championship. But McGigue was wowed to his corner by a brave but battered and bloody figure, after two minutes and nine seconds of fighting in the twelfth round. Blood gushed in a steady stream from his mouth where just a moment earlier Sharkey's glancing right had smashed a tooth and broken a blood vessel inside his cheek.

The 170-pound Irishman, admittedly in his late thirties and showing every bit of his age in the final rounds, was a beaten man, hammered and cuffed and roughly thrashed in the final stages of the bout. McGigue, before the accident ended his struggle, Sharkey was too young, too strong a fighting machine for the fiery McGigue to handle.

Sharkey was the aggressor nearly all the way, although Mike stood toe to toe with him on numerous occasions, but from the twelfth round, the sailor kept up a steady fusillade to the head and body, slowly wearing down Mike's endurance with sharp hooks and bruising uppercuts at close range.

McGigue WILTED
Under this sustained attack Mike wilted. He was groggy in the tenth and in the eleventh he suddenly bent double, claiming one of Sharkey's lefts had hit his low, but the referee refused to recognize the claim. In the twelfth, blood suddenly spurted from Mike's mouth in a thick stream after he had taken an overhand right to the side of the face.

Down Mike's chest the crimson stream splashed over the ring on ringstands as the veteran backed off from Sharkey's fierce rush. Up he came, the blood-splattered warrior with both fists to the head but Mike ducked out of range. Spectators, on their feet, yelled for the referee to stop it and he stepped in. McGigue became apparent that McGigue was possibly badly hurt and unable to continue.

Physicians quickly stemmed the flow of blood and an announcement no serious effects were likely.

BRING ON MALONEY
Sharkey, eyes closed and lips battered, could think only of his fellow townsmen and the battle that will decide Tunney's challenger for the fight.

"Give me Jimmy Maloney," he said in his dressing-room. "Give me Maloney and I'll knock him out. Give me Maloney and the Garden fell far below the record figures of the Maloney-Delaney fight, with 14,181 spectators contributing to a gate of $120,093, but a weather-battered battle was punctuated with thrills from start to finish.

The comparatively brief flash of McGigue's supremacy, bright as it was, was a prelude to a long and hard battle, the third and fourth rounds, had the Irishman in an uproar. The Irishman, rallying from a slow start, jabbed and cut his big rival, throwing him off balance and shooting over his right with damaging effect. Confident as Sharkey appeared, however, he showed a healthy respect for the veteran's right.

SHARKEY OPENED STRONGLY
Round one—They came out fighting and Mike missed a left jab he bounded to midsections in a clinch. Mike looked his rival over carefully from behind a lengthy teetling while Sharkey bored in with both fists flying but unable to score effectively. Mike missed a sharp right and nearly went down under three sharp left hooks to the head. Cut charged in to take two more crackling lefts and a jarring right to the chin. Bold Mike drew away to spit out blood. Sharkey ripped in with another pair of hooks to Mike's crown just before the bell.

Round two—Mike danced out speedily at the bell but without noting it. Mike's attack was ineffectual. Sharkey's sounding thumps were a real offense. A left hook sent Mike back, his mouth bleeding and Sharkey just missed a terrific right. They cuffed each other about the head in the centre of the ring and Round three—McGigue failed to tie up the Boston boy in a clinch and Sharkey's left bounced off his left. As they drew back Sharkey took a short right to the lips that drew blood. Maddened, he whiplashed his right to Mike's chin, nearly swerving his lighter foot. Sharkey spit blood and winked three times over Mike's shoulder to reassure his handlers. Mike flew in, chased Jack into a corner and scored heavily with both hands to the head. They came out in a craning exchange and the referee took Mike's left hook on the chin when he tried to separate them. They came right together again, ripping uppercuts to each other's head as the crowd shrieked its approval. The bell sent them gladly to their corners.

Round four—Mike was landing cleanly now and the Boston boy's confidence was a bit shaken. Sharkey's landed punches in games, Mike as he came in to batter the Irishman on the ropes. Mike broke a wristband on his glove and they halted for repairs. Sharkey when he refused to shake hands, Sharkey jumped in and they smashed madly to head and body, toe to toe, in the centre of the ring. Mike put Mike into the attack now, taking the offensive for the first time, and blood oozed from Sharkey's left eye. He was missing often put Mike with his left. Mike went after him, smacking his left easily to Sharkey's head while Jack brushed back. The bell did not want to stop fighting at the bell.

Round five—Sharkey came in jabbing with his left, but Mike's defence was too good. A left hook drove Jack back and a sounding right worked more destruction on Sharkey's left eye. It was almost closed, but Sharkey touched the elusive Michael, although the bold Irishman seemed a bit tired. Mike's left and right counters plunked loudly into Sharkey's body as he charged forward, and the Boston brawler was plainly worried at the bell.

Round six—The pace slowed up as they fought. Sharkey was confined to his efforts to popping lefts. Sharkey came in close to lift both hands in jarring hooks to the head, but Mike buried two lefts deep into Sharkey's body as he charged forward, saving his strength against the perfect condition and boxing power of his youthful rival. Sharkey put boxing gloves on, sweeping attack put Mike to the ropes, but Mike bumped two sounding rights to the chin to offset Sharkey's body bombardment at the bell.

SHARKEY DISTURBED
Round seven—Sharkey tore out, both arms swinging, and again pinned Sharkey through Mike's defence, but that was all. Mike let go with the right, the punch that knocked out Sharkey's chin and he didn't even

Delaney Passes

Minneapolis, March 5.—Jimmy Delaney, twenty-six, St. Paul light-heavyweight boxer, died here yesterday from blood poisoning resulting from an injury sustained in a fight with Maxie Rosenbloom at Cincinnati, February 11.

Western Curlers, in Close Match, Beaten

Toronto, March 4.—A nerve-racking match in which St. John came from behind to defeat Yellow Grass, Western Canada champions, 14 to 13, was the outstanding feature of the four games curled in the MacDonald trophy here yesterday. Yellow Grass appeared to have the game well in hand, commencing the last end. However, Skip Barkwell, with an open shot to draw to, curled a narrow rock and raised the St. John stone, giving them two shots and victory.

Halifax loomed as probable winners of the championship by defeating Montreal 12-9. Halifax and St. John are first and second, respectively in the standing.

BRITISH CHECKER TEAM LOSES

New York, March 4.—Defeating their English-Scottish opponents, 15 to 12 in the fourth day's play of the 1927 international tournament with British checker players since 1905, the United States squad last night had a total of 87 wins to their credit and the Britishers 11.

"I'm going. Don't you worry! and I like my wages too, before I go, and don't you say you haven't got them. It's my very own money, got plenty of money. It's my belief you're a bag of mystery, just playing at this game for some purpose of your own."

Jennifer walked out of the room and out of the house. She had reached the end of her endurance. Afterwards she could remember how she spent the afternoon, but late in the evening she found herself back at the wretched rooms feeling utterly worn out and ill.

May had gone. Her room was dismantled of its cheap finery and odds and ends and a note was pinned to the cotton counterpane.

"I'm not coming back. I can't live with you any harm, but I can't live with you. I've taken six pounds from your drawers—I suppose it's stealing, but I want it more than you do. By-bye—May."

Jennifer sat down on the bed and hid her face in her hands. It did not seem to matter very much, nothing seemed to matter. She did not even mind about the six pounds. What was money when one had lost everything else?

She felt utterly beaten, but with the desperate feeling that she would suffocate or go mad if she stayed in Fulham, she packed up and returned to the Bloomsbury Hotel.

At least it was clean and comfortable, and it seemed to give her back something of her lost self-respect.

She closed the tea-shop, and put it in the hands of an agent, then with part of the small sum still left to her, she paid her liabilities and started once more on the dreary hunt for work. Living carefully, she found she had enough money to keep her for a month. "I shall have found work before then, of course," she told herself and struggled hard to believe it.

It was September—a singularly hot and airless September and London seemed empty and depressing. Day after day Jennifer was turned away from agencies and advertisements.

"But I'm willing to do anything—anything," she protested. But apparently there was no work of any kind to be done, or else nobody, believed her to be capable of executing it.

Lying awake at night, the thought of the future tormented her. More than once the idea of appealing to Chesney came to her overwrought brain, but in the morning she was ashamed of her own weakness and lack of pride. One night she started up from fitful sleep to find herself saying aloud, "Well, there's always the river for unwanted people." That frightened her and made her fancy that her nerve was giving way. Such thoughts were horribly cowardly. She told herself that this was only another bad patch in her life and would pass.

One day, scanning a page of newspaper advertisements she saw the announcement of a forthcoming concert at which Dolores was to appear. It seemed so long ago since she and Dolores had been friends, so long ago that Dolores had been foolish enough to envy her. There was no need for envy any longer. The last eighteen months of her life seemed to have been cut clean away from under her feet, leaving her isolated and afraid.

Even Nicholas who had pretended to love her so faithfully had apparently made no effort to find her. Dolores had been right when she said that no man was worth breaking one's heart about.

She thought suddenly of Dolores's necklace. It was hidden at the bottom of her large trunk, and she had never looked at it since the long, she left Baker Street. She could sell it if the worst came to the worst, but for the fact that she had promised to let Dolores know first if ever she wished to part with it.

Poor Dolores! with her queer hair and her kindly heart. Jennifer dreamed of her that night, and in the morning when she was waiting in Oxford Street for an omnibus to take her city wards, in a forlorn hope of obtaining an advertised secretarial job, she came face to face with her.

And Dolores said bluntly: "I'm not a bit surprised. I dreamed about you last night, and I believe in dreams. Mine so often come true!"

"I dreamed about you, too," Jennifer answered.

"There were spots of bright color

Try a little diapsin. Supper dances, fancy drinks, too much tobacco, coffee and highly seasoned dishes play havoc with the stomach. Diapsin takes the worst sort of combination of foods, settles them, absorbs the gassy, sour heartburn and you go peacefully to sleep without a struggle.

It is embarrassing to have to refuse eating in company. But if you are a dyspeptic you may safely take a chance with any mixture and avoid suffering by the rule of one or two diapsins after eating. You'll get more out of life, more pleasure, more health, more strength and endurance.

Steady digestion and freedom from indigestion are guaranteed. Any stomachic by the use of diapsin after eating.

Get a 50-cent package of Paper's Diapsin at any drug store. You'll recommend it.

Peering out of the hollow stump, the rabbit gentleman saw not one of the Bad Chaps—not a Fox, Wolf or Bob Cat—but Arabella Chick, the little hen girl. Under one wing Arabella was carrying a bunch of flowers.

"Ha!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily when he saw Arabella. "There is nothing about her to frighten me."

In her pale cheeks and Dolores said blankly: "My lord, don't you look like that? What the wide world has happened to you? Here, for God's sake don't cry in the middle of Oxford Street!" for the weak tears had risen to Jennifer's eyes. Dolores clutched her arm. "Come and have a coffee and we can talk. It's months since I saw you. They chose a quiet corner in a teashop, and Jennifer wiped her eyes with a trembling hand.

"I'm sorry to be such a fool," she said brokenly. "But I've had rather a bad time."

Dolores was watching her sympathetically.

"Jennifer shook her head. "No, only worried," she tried to smile. "It was worry that killed the cat, you know," she added whimsically.

She pulled herself together with an effort.

"Tell me about yourself. I saw your coat advertisement."

"Never mind that. I want to hear about you. What made you run away?"

"What else could I do?" Dolores shrugged her shoulders. "If you'd stayed another five minutes everything would have been all right. Chesney was trying to smash your door down half an hour after you left. If only you'd waited, Jennifer, you'd have had him eating out of your hand."

Jennifer shuddered.

"I've done with that part of my life. I never want to go back to it." She hesitated then asked with flushed cheeks: "And—Buddy? How is Buddy?"

Dolores winced as if she had been hurt, but the next moment she was laughing.

"Oh, Buddy and I have quarrelled. No, you needn't blame yourself, it would have happened anyway. I told her she'd behaved like a cad over you, and she boxed my ears."

Dolores flushed scarlet up to the rims of her darkened eyes. "That's the modern girl! It finished me anyway. She's gone on the stage now—front row of the chorus. Some dirty little foreign producer got hold of her, and plumped her up with a lot of lies."

Said she was a born actress, danced like Pavlova, and so forth—

"Oh Dolores, I'm so sorry."

"No need to be, my dear. I've come to the conclusion that we must all work out our own destinies. I tried to help Buddy, and I made a mess of it. It's up to her now. I wasn't so philosophical at first. I admit, I even went so far as to beg Chesney to try and get her back for me."

"He wouldn't."

"No, he said quite frankly that as far as he was concerned she could go to the devil. I don't blame him; you see he lost you through Buddy."

"Where's she now?"

"I heard he'd gone abroad, but I don't know. I also heard that he and Gaunt came to blows about you, but I don't know if that's true either."

Jennifer had gone very white, and there was a pathetic question in her eyes which Dolores answered by a shake of the head.

Uncle Wiggily and the Funny Flowers

By HOWARD R. GARIS

(Copyright, 1927, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

"Wait a minute, Uncle Wiggily! Wait a minute! Whoop-o! Wait for me!"

The rabbit gentleman heard a voice behind him calling that way one afternoon when he had been hopping around the woods and fields looking for an adventure without finding one.

"But I don't like the kind of adventure this one seems likely to be!" said Mr. Longears to himself as he heard the voices. "That must be one of the Bad Chaps wanting me to wait so he can nibble my ears. I'll hide until he goes away."

The bunny slipped into a hollow stump, around which grew a tangle of old honey-suckle vine that soon would begin to put forth green leaves and blossoms, and, hiding there, Mr. Longears heard footsteps approaching, and then a little voice said: "Oh, dear! Uncle Wig was here a moment ago, but now he's gone, and I wanted to show him my flowers. Why didn't he wait?"

Ahem, my dear!" he said, stepping out of the hollow stump and pretending to cough.

"Oh, how you scared me!" cackled Arabella flopping around so quickly that she dropped the bunch of flowers.

Uncle Wiggily picked them up and, being very fond of posies, he raised the bunch to his pink, twinkling nose before he gave the flowers back to Arabella.

"Why! Why! my dear! These are very funny flowers!" exclaimed the rabbit gentleman, taking one long sniff after another. "Very funny, indeed. The queerest flowers I ever saw!"

"What do you mean?" clucked the chicken girl. "I think they are very pretty flowers."

"True enough they are pretty—red, blue, pink and yellow," said Uncle Wiggily, looking at them. "But they have no perfume—no smell at all, that is, unless I have a cold in my head."

"Oh, no! You haven't a cold in your head, Uncle Wig!" laughed Arabella. "But, of course, those flowers have no smell, for they are made of paper. The Lady Mouse Teacher in the Hollow Stump School showed me how to make them out of paper—roses, tulips, violets, daisies, buttercups and all the others. I made them out of paper. And that's why I was hurrying to catch up to you to show you my new bouquet. Only you hid away from me."

"I thought you were one of the bad chaps calling to me to wait so you could nibble my ears!" exclaimed the Bunny. "But when I hid in the stump and looked out and saw you—why, then everything was all right."

"I'm glad," cackled Arabella. "And don't you think my flowers are pretty, even if they are funny?"

"Indeed they are," Uncle Wiggily said. "And I'm glad you aren't the Fuzzy Fox because—"

"Well, you don't need to be glad any longer, because here I am!" suddenly barked a voice, and from around the stump slithered the Fox.

"Oh, oh, dear me!" gasped Uncle Wiggily. He held his paws over his ears, but the Fox only laughed and said: "That will do no good!"

Then Arabella bravely stepped up and said: "Before you nibble Uncle Wiggily, Mr. Fox, smell my pretty flowers. Smell my roses, tulips and violets! Take a good sniff!"

"I will," growled the Fox. "I love flowers, but Uncle Wiggily needn't think just because I smell the flowers I'll stop from nibbling his ears. No, sir!"

The Fuzzy Chap took a long sniff of the paper flowers, and of course he couldn't smell any perfume. Then he took another large sniff and when he still smelled nothing he gave a long howl and said:

"Oh, I must be catching cold in my nose! Oh, I can't smell a thing! How dreadful! I must have a terrible
